LA MONTECCHIA

Conte Emo Capodilista

For anyone interested in culture big cities are a must. Those primarily wanting a holiday generally avoid them, being acquainted only too well with their hustle and bustle. But what if one is in search of a cultural holiday? The answer could be to find accommodation in the vicinity of the town, but still in the open countryside.

The La Montecchia estate is just that. Padua is some 10 km away, Venice the same again. Vicenza, Verona, Ferrara, Mantua and Rovigo - to name but a few of Venetia's larger towns - are just nearby for excursions in the immediate surroundings. So are some 3,000 villas in the Terraferma, as the hinterland of Venice is called. You do not, of course, have to visit all of them, although many of them are open to the public. La Montecchia, too, has a villa - Villa Capodilista. Standing on a hilltop, this hunting lodge of yore provides a magnificent vista - it is reminiscent of Leonardesque backgrounds - across a luxuriant plain, sprinkled with cornfields and vineyards, farmhouses and gardens, poplars and cypresses.

As well as the villa, La Montecchia comprises the medieval citadel with the administrative centre of the vineyard. Four guest apartments have recently been adapted there. Semi-fortified, the site features a phenomenon encountered again and again in the villas and country houses of the region: once within its walls, the bustle of Venetia is left far behind and one is transposed to a refuge where tranquillity reigns, accompanied only by birdsong and the rustle of the breeze. It is bordered by the wooded Euganean Hills, their trattorias and taverns providing welcome shade and refreshment. The surroundings offer a cornucopia of cultural sights, in the little towns of Este, Monselice, Montagnana and Arquà Petrarca, for instance, or the Abbazia di Praglia, still within sight of La Montecchia. What is there for holidaymakers to do here?

As we have said, there is an abundance of culture. As far as sport is concerned, the estate borders on a golf course with a swimming pool and tennis courts. Two further golf clubs are situated nearby. At times when neither culture nor sport are on the agenda it's good just to lie in a deck chair in the garden or on the terrace, listening to the sound of the cicadas and watching an isolated summer cloud pass by.

THE VILLA

Originally a hunting lodge (building work started in 1568), this was the brainchild of Dario Varotari, a painter flirting with architecture, a pupil of Veronese who remained faithful to his own métier and covered the rooms in mannerist frescos: scenes from mythology and family history, putti, grotesques and vignettes. In keeping with the open, hilly situation, Varotari designed a severely square building with identical facades: each with two side towers between which extend double-storey loggias. The formal severity produces a delightful contrast with the playfully theatrical loggias, their frescos and their elaborately decorated pediments. The basically square structure of the hedge-lined terrace is also broken up by semicircular extensions, so-called exedra.

The seven castles then owned by the Capodilista family are depicted in the Stanza delle Ville, including the world-famous Villa Emo in Fanzolo designed by Palladio. Like the other villas owned by the Emo Capodilista family, it is open to the public.

The hill provides a splendid view - it is reminiscent of Leonardesque backgrounds - across a luxuriant plain, sprinkled with cornfields and vineyards, terracotta-coloured farmhouses and gardens, poplars and cypresses, bordered by the Euganean Hills. These are, so to speak, the local mountains for Padua and for Venice. On a clear day, they can be seen from the Serenissima, some 40 km to the east.

Family History. There is no lack of families who can trace their history back a couple of generations or two or three hundred years. It is far more rare to find families with a thousand years of history.

The earliest existing evidence of the Emos goes back to the late 10th century in Venice where, in republican and oligarchic times alike, they were always among the ruling families, holding positions as statesmen, diplomats, humanists and, last but not least, important military commanders. One Emo led the army against the Genoese, another defeated the Turks in the naval battle of Lepanto, a third besieged Algiers and Tunis.

The Capodilista family was even older and can be traced back to Charlemagne. When that king of the Franks invaded Italy in the late 8th century in order to dislodge the last Lombard king, the Transalgardo brothers, as they called themselves then, belonged to his retinue. They both took the enemy commander prisoner and one of them, Carlotto, became the head of a company, the so-called capo di lista. He was allowed to keep this name and given the attribute Conte.

The Capodilistas settled near Padua, holding office as civil and military leaders or princes of the Church, among them the blessed Giordano Forzatè, founder of the abbey of San Benedetto in Padua. In 1783 Beatrice, the last Capodilista, married Leonardo Emo, the Venetian patrician. Since that time the family has borne the double name Emo Capodilista.

Today, in the style of the influential Venetian families as from the 16th century, the Emo Capodilistas are primarily involved with the occupation of agriculture and viticulture.

WINE AND FOOD

The wine. The La Montecchia estate is primarily concerned with viticulture, an activity established here since the Middle Ages. Petrarch himself appreciated the local vintage, making his home at Arquà at the southern foot of the Euganean Hills. Black grapes predominate on these 50 acres: Merlot, Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Carmenere and Raboso, a local vine variety that is picked late, are all cultivated here. Merlot and Cabernet have been grown in La Montecchia since Napoleon I's day and are justifiably regarded as local vines. For some ten years now Conte Giordano Emo Capodilista, the owner and manager of La Montecchia, has made every effort to improve the quality of his wines still further. Most of them bear the controlled appellation D.O.C. Colli Euganei which is only awarded to superior growths. Prizes and recognition from the most notable wine critics like Robert Parker, Luca Maroni, "Gambero Rosso" and Luigi Veronelli have encouraged Giordano Emo to continue in this manner. Some half of the production is exported abroad. Culinary Matters. In most, but not all, of the Euganean Hills - some are just wooded - there are restaurants, trattorias and taverns providing delicious local food. Gallina padovana (chicken à la Padua), for instance, coniglio (rabbit), polenta con soppressa (polenta with brawn), risotto with erbe dei colli (wild local herbs) or baccalà (salt cod). And, of course, pasta in all its variations. To conclude, a formaggio asuago or a grano padano. Guests dine in the midst of locals, delighting in the fragrant forest air. Just by the estate is the Relais Golf Montecchia Restaurant belonging to the Golf Club della Montecchia. Enjoying an excellent reputation, it is an annexe of the Le Calandre Restaurant which boasts two Michelin stars.

Excursions in the neighbourhood. Venetia is steeped in history and culture, city like Padua, Vicenza, Verona, Mantua, Ferrara and, of course, Venice are within easy reach. The numerous Veneto villas, are a real must. The most famous of these - La Badoera, La Malcontenta, La Rotonda, Villa Maser, Villa Emo and the Villa Cornaro Rush, for instance - were designed by Andrea Palladio (1508-1580) who combined the classical proportions of antiquity with the ground plans of the traditional Venetian palaces. Seventeen are the work of Palladio, but on the Brenta Canal north of Padua alone there are 125 villas, many of which evoke his vocabulary. The most outstanding among them are the Contarini Simes and Pisani Villas - both more princely residences than villas in the strict sense - and La Malcontenta. They are all easily accessible from Frassanelle. Many of them are open to the public.

Apart from the famous towns and the extraordinary villas, we suggest visiting some smaller towns, all of them reachable in less than 1,5 hours by car. Bassano del Grappa lies below the Grappa mountain. Close by Asolo is a medieval jewel located north of Bassano. Furthermore you have Marostica, a fortified hamlet famous for the biennial chess game with human figures, held in commemoration of a medieval challenge to win the hand of the chatelains daughter. Montagnana is one of the most famous and better conserved medieval citadels of Europe. Possagno is where the world famous sculptor Antonio Canova was born. In the museum, next to the house where he was born, you can see the plaster models and designs of his major works of art.

Abbey of Praglia: The terracotta-coloured Abbazia di Praglia nestles on Lonzina Hill. The largest Benedictine abbey in Italy, this was founded in the 11th century, acquiring its present form - with the exception of the older campanile - in the 15th century. Of particular interest are the cloisters and the Church of the Holy Virgin. The monks produce and sell honey, face creams, soaps and herbal teas. Getting there: on the road to Padova, a little after Bressio you will find indications to the right. Open: guided tours only: Saturday and holidays: regular hour 2.30, 3.00, 3.30, 4.00, 4.30 pm. Daylight saving: 3.30, 4.00, 4.30, 5.00, 5.30 pm. Week day: regular hour: 2.30, 3.10, 3.50, 4.30 pm. Daylight saving: 3.30, 4.10, 4.50, 5.30. Closed on Monday, New Year's day, Epiphany, Easter Triduum, Easter Sunday, Pentecost, Assumption, All Saints Day, Immaculate Conception, Christmas and Christmas Eve. Sunday Mass: 9.15 and 11.00 solemn. 16.30 (17.00 daylight saving) www.praglia.it

La Campanella is a garden center founded by Anna Maria Sgarabottolo which specialises in old and English roses. Only a few minutes from Frassanelle, before you reach Bastia, turn right towards Cervarese S. Croce, keep going until you reach indications for both Bastia e Cervarese S. Croce. Turn left here, the garden center is shortly thereafter to your left. Anna Maria has planted a beautiful rose garden. In May, the garden is a true firework of colours and smells. Afficionados will find it interesting in every season, here you will find a large selection of the most beautiful old roses and their hybrids. Tel. 049 9910905 www.vivaiolacampanella.com

Villa Capodilista: Visits only upon request: Tel. 049 637294. Originally a hunting lodge built in 1568, this was the brainchild of Dario Varotari, a painter and architect, pupil of Veronese. The rooms are covered in mannerist frescoes: scenes from mythology and family history, putti, grotesques and vignettes. In keeping with the open, hilly situation, Varotari designed a severely square building with identical facades, each with extended double-storey loggias. The formal severity produces a delightful contrast with the playfully theatrical loggias, their frescos and their elaborately decorated pediments. The internal layout of the rooms follows the symmetrical principle. The four rooms on the ground floor and the four rooms on the first floor are connected by a splendid staircase with four ramps. The basically square structure of the hedge-lined Italian garden is broken up by semicircular extensions, so-called exedra.

Villa dei Vescovi, in Luvigliano: the villa is curren being refurbished it is expected to be re-open to the public in Spring 2010. Constructed between 1535 and 1542 on an embankment in the Eugean Hills this imposing villa stands out against the surrounding rural landscape. Much more than a mere villa built to serve agricultural functions, it is notable for its design, which reinterprets Roman models and encapsulates a perfect sense of harmony between art and nature a sense that is also evident in the interior design, which features an important cycle of Raphaelesque frescos painted between 1542 and 1548 by Lamberto Sustris. For reopening cheque the www.fondoambiente.it Getting there: drive through Montemerlo e follow the indications for Teolo. At the stop cross the road (SP 89) and continue towards Luvigliano.

Villa Rotonda by Palladio c. 1556: Vicenza, via Rotonda 29. Although the Villa Rotonda is the universal icon of the Palladian villa, in reality its owner considered it as an urban residence, or – more appropriately – a suburban one. Paolo Almerico in fact sold his own palace in the city in order to move just beyond its walls, and Palladio himself publishes the Rotonda amongst the palaces, not the villas, in the Quattro Libri. Otherwise the villa is isolated on the crest of a small hill and originally there were no agricultural dependencies. Visit: garden: 15 March - 4 November: from Tuesday to Sunday 10am-12am / 3pm-6pm. Villa: 15 March - 4 November: Wed. 10am-12am / 3-6 pm. With booking (min. 25 persons) after 4 November and in other days. Tel. +39 0444 321793 / Fax +39 049 8790879 (preferable) +39 049 8791380.

Villa Valmarana ai Nani: Vicenza, via dei Nani 8. The Villa is a marvellous architectural and artistic sight composed by three buildings and a wide 18th century park. In 1757, Tiepolo and his son Giandomenico were invited to Vicenza to fresco rooms in the Villa Valmarana and in the adjoining guest quarters, the so-called 'foresteria'. Their patron was Count Giustino Valmarana, a scholar and theater enthusiast. Tiepolo frescoed the vestibule and four ground-floor rooms, while his son executed the decoration in the adjacent guest house. Giandomenico's lively genre scenes featuring peasants and merchants were intended to form a marked contrast with Giambattista's noble and tragic themes in the Villa, borrowed from famous works of Greek, Roman, and Italian literature. Visit: March 10 - November 8 2009 from Tuesday to Sunday 10am - 12am / 3pm - 6pm. On request, you can also ask to visit the villa in different periods. Tel: 0444321803. www.villavalmarana.com

Villa Barbarigo, Noventa Vicentina. If you go to Vicenza through the panoramic road (see below) you must take a detour and visit this amazing villa. Among the villas erected near Vicenza for Venetian patricians, Villa Barbarigo distinguishes itself because it was built for a dogal family. For this reason it deserves the title of Villa of the Dogi (definition that in the past some authors had not correctly attributed to all the venetian villas). Here everything cooperates to glorify the Barbarigo family: the majesty of the architecture on four floors, the scenographic and solemn façade crowned by daggers and flanked with two wings of porticoes, the wide cycle of frescoes that fills an area of approximately 430 sqm. Frescoes by Antonio Foler, Antonio Vassillachi the Aliense and Luca Ferrari from Reggio. Visits: every day from 9,30 to 12,30 am.

Castello di Valbona, Valbona di Lozzo Atestino. The Castle is situated along the road leading to Noventa Vicentina. It belongs to the most interesting and best preserved fortified buildings in the whole province and offers a chance to visitors to see an ancient castle in its almost original state. It seems to have its origins in the 13th Century perhaps built on the order of Ezzelino da Romano. It became the property of count Lozzo, passed to the Comune of Padova and to the Carraresi. The structure of the castle does not seem to have served so much as a feudal residence as a significant defence structure, capable of withstanding the Vicentine raids. In the castle can be visited if you go to the restaurant, or pizzeria and pub. Tel. 0429 97022. Closed on Monday and Tuesday and November. Open in August.

The Castello Catajo is situated in the immediate vicinity of Frassanelle, beside the Euganean Hills, on the main Padua-Rovigo road. Its builder, Pio Enea Obizzi, inventor of the howitzer (Ital. oblice), took part in the siege of Lepanto (1571) in which the Turks were defeated. This explains the somewhat Oriental, fortress-like architecture. The park is magnificent with a pond covered in water lilies, in the shade of massive, centuries-old trees. With their waxy leaves and their showy flowers the magnolias, in particular, catch the eye. The castello is open from April to August, Tuesday and Sunday from 3pm to 7pm. March, September, October and November: Tuesday and Sunday from 2.30 pm to 6.30 pm. Tel. 049 9100411. www.castellodelcatajo.it

The remarkable Villa Emo (at Rivella, just near Monselice) can be viewed by appointment. The garden is accessible on certain days: (April and October: Thursday and Saturday 2pm to 7pm, Sunday 10am to 7pm) the ornamental garden is not far from the main road, but nevertheless remains a world of its own.

"The average traveller would not dream what marvellous parks and gardens lie hidden behind commonplace castle walls on a country road", as the authoress Tryphosa Bates Batcheller once aptly remarked. Tel. 0429 781970.

Abbazia di Carceri, Via Camaldoli 4, Carceri. Very old and impressive abbey. The first church built here by the Augustinian monks goes back to 1107. The abbey has a cloister from the 1400', beautifully decorated in Pietra d'Istria (stone from Istria). Part of the original library from the 15th century, built by the Camaldolese monks, can still be visited. Open from Monday to Friday only upon reservation. Guided tours : on Saturday from 3pm to 6.30 pm; on Sunday from 11am to 12am and from 3pm to 7pm. Getting there: go to Este and then follow the indications for Carceri.

Villa Contarini: Piazzola sul Brenta (on the way to Cittadella and Bassano) antique market on the last Sunday of the month. The magniloquent baroque appearance that the Villa Contarini displays today is, in all probability, the result of the seventeenth-century transformation of a villa designed by Andrea Palladio in the 1540s for Paolo Contarini and his brothers. Traces of Palladio's work linger on in maps and archival documents, although little is now visible of a building which was transformed in several campaigns from 1662 on. In 1676 the right wing was enlarged and remodelled, with a two-storey order of rustic columns and telamons, and a program of ostentatious sculptural decoration which invades the principal villa block too. A map of 1788 shows that by that date the porticoed hemicycle defining the great piazza already existed. The 50 hectares of parkland are entirely open to visitors. The flowerbeds, lakes, fish ponds, lawns and garden features, woods and wetlands form a protected environment, home to many species of birds and small mammals. Visit: the inside of the villa only guided tours: May 1 to September 30:

weekdays 9- 12am / 3-7pm, Sundays and holidays 3-8pm; December 1 to February 29: 9-12am / 2-5pm; November and March: 9-12am / 2-6pm; April and October: 9-12am / 2.30- 6.30pm tel. 049 5590347/238 – fax 049 9619182. www.villacontarini.com

The river Brenta Villas: Once along this waterway sailed the "burchielli", boats that carried the Venetian nobleman; nowadays all the boats that cruise along the Brenta Canal are called "burchielli". These boats carry from 70 to 135 passengers. The guided cruises usually include boat trips from Padua to Venice or viceversa (Padua, Strà, Dolo, Mira, Oriago, Malcontenta, Fusina, Venezia); and the visits to Villa Gradenigo of Oriago, to Villa Widmann or Barchessa Valmarana of Mira, to Villa Pisani of Strà, to Villa Foscari Malcontenta by Palladio. Also included in the programs a visit of the Ancient Mills of the 16th century, historically very important for the economy of this area. Some programs include departure or arrival in the historical centre of Padua at the new landing stage of "Porte Contarine" lock or at the old fluvial port "Portello" with its Steps of the 16th century. A daily cruise from 09.00 to 18.00 proposes: navigation, visit to three Villas, visit to the 16th century Mills in Dolo and the guide; lunch is optional and it is served in a restaurant. Special short cruises and half day public and private group programs are available.

Possagno: Gyptothea museo Canoviano: Piazza Canova, Possagno (TV). Possagno is the native village of the neo-classical sculptor Antonio Canova (1757- 1822). The Gyptothea (greek term for collection of plaster casts) was built in 1836 just by Canova's native house and it preserves moulds and plaster models, terracotta, wax scale models, some marble statues and about 300 works of Canova's Roman studio. In 1957 the architect Carlo Scarpa extended the Gyptothea with a new and modern annex which contains some of Canova's most famous and precious scale model. Canova's house is preserved as it was during his last years of life. The mortal remains of the great artist are hosted in one of his masterpieces the magnificent neo-classical Temple. VISITING THIS REGION WITH CHILDREN

Venetia is rich in attractive sightseeing destinations which are also fun for children. First of all of course Venice, where children can run and play without any danger of being hurt by cars. A journey in a Gondola along the canals is a magical experience which a child will remember all his life. For the older ones the arena of Verona recalls the roman gladiators. But also medieval castles can be fun.

Following castles are in the immediate vicinity:

Castello di San Martino: very close to Frassanelle, the oldest part of this small castle goes back to the year 1000. Later on the Carraresi amplified the building. The Venetians used it as a port along the river. Today the building has been transformed into a museum of the river Bacchiglione with finds going from the age of iron to the middle ages. Getting there: turn to the right towards Padova at the traffic lights in Fossana. The first road to the left is Via San Martino, the castle is a little further down this road. The castle and the museum are open April 1st to September 30th . Saturday 3pm to 7pm, Sunday 10am-1pm and 2pm-7pm. From October 1st Saturday 2pm-6pm, Sunday 10am-1pm and 2pm-6pm Tel. 049 9915425. Responsible Sig.ra Debora Coron 348 8746424 Tel.0429 647157. www.musei.padova.it.

The Castello Catajo is situated in the immediate vicinity of Frassanelle, beside the Euganean Hills, on the main Padua-Rovigo road. Its builder, Pio Enea Obizzi, inventor of the howitzer (Ital. oblice), took part in the siege of Lepanto (1571) in which the Turks were defeated. This explains the somewhat Oriental, fortress-like architecture. The park is magnificent with a pond covered in water lilies, in the shade of massive, centuries-old trees. With their waxy leaves and their showy flowers the magnolias, in particular, catch the eye. The castello is open from March to November. March, September, October, November: Tuesday and Sunday from 2:30pm to 6:30pm. From April to August: Tuesday and Sunday from 3 pm to 7pm. Tel. 049 9100411. www.castellodelcatajo.it.

Castello di San Pelagio: on the same road between Padova and Rovigo, north of the Castello del Catajo, you will find the interesting Museum of the Air (Museo dell'Aria), which assembles documents, models and aeroplanes from the time of Leonardo da Vinci to our days. You will find the exposition about Gabriele D'Annunzio highly interesting. It was here that he planned his famous flight to Vienna in 1918. The garden is also very beautiful with its 2 mazes (a third one is under construction) is a real attraction for children. Open: from March to November. Wed. And Thu. 9am-1pm, Fri. and Sat.: 9am-1pm/2:30-6:30pm, Sun. and holidays: 10am-7pm. Tel. 049 9125008. www.museodellaria.it

Ca' Marcello Only a few kilometres south of the Castello del Catajo, in Monselice, lies the Ca' Marcello. Ca' is the Venetians' abbreviation for Casa (house) - an understatement indeed, for this is the heavily fortified castle of Ezzelino III da Romano, a local tyrant in the 13th century. The Ca' Marcello is the only well preserved example of a lordly residence of that era in the Veneto. Remarkable, too, are the six chapels on the Via Sacra alongside the castle hill. Open from Tuesday to Sunday. Guided tours daylight saving: at 9am, 10am, 11am, 3pm, 4pm, 5pm. Regular hour: 9am, 10am, 11am, 2pm, 3pm, 4pm winter. Closed on Monday. Tel. 0429 72931. www.castellodimonselice.it

The gardens of Villa Barbarigo, Valsanzibio: In the 1600's Antonio Barbarigo, brother of St. Gregorio, enlarged and transformed the exterior of the villa by drawing out a large water garden inspired by the antique Romans. The garden is decorated with 70 statues of which 40 are attributed to Marengo.

Furthermore there are 4 ponds, 3 water follies, 16 fountains and a boxwood maze. Getting there: from Luvigliano drive towards Torreglia and then Valsanzibio. Open from March to November, 10am to 1pm and 2pm until sunset. Tel. 049 8059224 or 049 8055614 responsible Dr. Rossi Tel. 328 6482894.

Butterfly Arc: in Montegrotto Terme a vast greenhouse is the habitat of 100 different types of butterflies from all over the world. Visitors can wander through this oasis of palmtrees, orchids, aloccasias and passiflora. Nearby you will find a mythological garden inhabited by gnomes, elves, fairies, magicians, witches, kings and queens, all figures taken from ancient naturalistic legends. Open: April to September, 9.30am to 12.30pm and 2.30pm to 5.30pm. February, March and October, November 9.30am to 12.30pm and 2pm to 4pm. SPORT

GOLF

The club "Golf della Montecchia", located immediately next to the estate, literally 3 minutes on foot door to door. It is only one of three excellent golf clubs in the area. The Montecchia Golf Club (Tel. +39 049 8055550, Fax +39 049 8055737, www.golfrassanelle.it), based on a project by Tom Macauley - President of the British Association of Golf Course Architects - lies below the Castello della Montecchia. It is a modern course built over a surface of about 820.000 square meters landscaped with undulations and several lakes. The course (27 holes par 72 with a development of 6318 metres) is completely flat, very technical and requires a good concentration from the golfer who has to pay particular attention to the water obstacles that make the play more demanding.

Daily Fees for 18 and for 27 holes - The guests of Montecchia are granted a special rate on the greenfee of the Montecchia Golf Course.

Please make your reservations ahead of time (2 weeks ahead) via fax to the Golf Club +39 049 80 55 737, indicating the date, number of persons and eventual extras (clubs, car) and that you are guests of the Castello della Montecchia. The Golf Club is closed on Mondays.

The Veneto has 18 golf courses all in all (see the website below), 2 of which are in the nearest vicinity. Frassanelle Golf Club and the Padova Golf Club are more or less 10 and 20 minutes by car.

Web site with full description of the golf courses in the Veneto:
<http://www.english.abanolink.it/fitnesssport/golf/golf.asp>

The Frassanelle Golf Club: Via Rialto 5/A, 35030 Rovolon. Tel. +39 049 9910722 Fax +39 049 9910691, <http://www.golfrassanelle.it>, info@golfrassanelle.it The course has been drawn out within the nineteenth century park of Villa Papafava dei Carraresi by Marco Croze, one of the best golf architects in Italy. He drew out a course with 18 holes adding some difficulties to the already existent ones, ensuring the golfer to fully enjoy himself on every hole. The Club House has been restored from a rural cottage of the 1700s and it has been furnished with much care and detail in a style that brings to mind the one of English club houses. The architecture together with the characteristics of the landscape make the Golf Club Frassanelle one of the most "English" Golf Clubs in the Veneto region. THE COURSE: (18 holes par 72 with a development of 6.180 metres) has been designed with modern principles, with insidious, undulated greens for the presence of the numerous water obstacles like lakes and streams. Each hole requests maximum concentration and a game strategy completely different from the one used on the previous hole.

DAILY FEES : The guests of the estate of La Montecchia are granted a discount on the green fees of the Frassanelle Golf Course. Padua Golf Club Via Noiera 57, 35030 Galzignano Terme (Valsanzibio). Tel: 049 9130078, <http://www.golfpadova.it>, 15 km from Frassanelle. With its 18 holes (par 72, SSS 72, length 6.053 m) it constitutes a third attractive alternative for golfers. The ground is located at the foot of the Euganean Hills, near Villa Barbarigo, dating back to seventeenth century. It was built in 1960 by the English architect John Harris, it stretches across a surface of 70 hectares with a series of studied obstacles to give the game more charm. The course is developed on the inside of a real park, with more than 8000 trees and bushes that fit in with the surrounding landscape.

THE COURSE: (18 holes par 72 with a development of 6.053 metres) is extremely varied and very technical, with canals, lakes, bunkers, scattered everywhere making a more difficult game for the golfer.

The welcoming Club House has a restaurant, pool and tennis court. Directions: (out of the estate turn right, at the first stop right, keep going until the 2nd stop after the village of Montemerlo, turn right and immediately left towards:

Venezia Golf Club: Strada Vecchia 1, 30126 Alberoni Lido di Venezia. Tel: 041731333

www.circologolfvenezia.it. 2 hours journey minimum. The Venice Golf Club was born in the locality of "Alberoni" on the island of Lido- Venice in 1928. It was realized by the Scottish architect Cruickshank. The best golf players in the world have played on this course, we are speaking of Arnold Palmer, who still is the owner of the course record with 67, as to say 5 under par. But he is only one of the many: Henry Cotton, Johnny Miller, Severiano Ballesteros, Tony Jacklin, Lee Trevino and many others of the old generation have been playing golf here. Among the younger ones, Bernard Langer, José Maria Olazabal, John Daly, Angel Cabrera, Colin Montgomery, Ian Poulter.

THE COURSE: (18 holes, Par 72 with a development of 6.199). From the original project the sandy soil is still the old one but greens are now a lot more undulated and many more water hazards are now part of the link. Hole number 9 is mythical and published on all the most prestigious golf magazines because of its setting on the lagoon. Hole number 11 is considered the best par 5 in all Italy. Many of the other holes have their special story to tell, for all of them it is important to be precise and able to hit the ball out of the woods some now and then. Last tip: pay attention to the wind, it can change the way you have to approach to the hole and if you don't understand how and when you have to change your strategy it can be too late to go back home with a nice score. 6.199 metres. Par 72 metres. Directions: Take the A4 in Grisignano to Venice. 8 km after the exit Padova Ind. / Bologna you will find the gas station Arino Est, immediately after it be careful and keep the right lane, otherwise you will find you self in the new motorway which bypasses Venice. Pass the toll bar and follow the indications to Venice. As you have crossed the laguna bridge and just after the traffic light turn right towards Tronchetto / ferry boats - Lido. The ferry leaves every 50 min from 6,40 am the journey takes 35 min. As you are in the Lido island follow the indication for Alberoni.
